Know Your Options

Different ways families can respond when school concerns come up.

1

Ask a Question

Use this when you need information, clarification, or want to better understand what is happening at school.

2

Request a Meeting

Use this when a concern needs a real conversation, problem-solving, or shared planning.

3

Put It in Writing

Use email or written notes to document concerns, summarize conversations, and create a record.

4

Ask for Supports or Accommodations

Use this when a child may need classroom supports, sensory supports, behavior supports, breaks, or a 504 plan.

5

Request an Evaluation

Use this when you suspect a disability or believe your child may need a school-based evaluation.

6

Raise the Concern Higher

Use this when the issue continues and you need help from a principal, district leader, school board, or outside support.

You do not have to do everything at once.
Start with the option that fits your family.
